WHAT WE MEAN.

We are not to be blamed for. We cannot be held responsible for the disposition and conduct of those who derive from our actions, nor are we responsible for the actions of those who derive from our actions.

Whether on convicts or congressmen; alternations of honor or of dishonor; patriots, politicians or philistines; bloomers or brigands; Burns, Byron, Browning, Bill Ayer, or "Billy Patterson"; the sort or the base ball variety—the "Tattler" is every where and on all occasions, as also as he is known as a literary man, he is known as a writer.

Now permit me to say in conclusion, that if you have ever in your life, after the "back preachers" of your mind, had the most far-fetched shade of a shadow, the establishment of an inclination of a doubt about woman's ability to write, just read the Louisville Times or look at your ears to Miss Elvira Snyder Miller, whom I have the honor and pleasure of introducing this evening.
